The Duck-billed Platypus

In the 1790s, the skin of an animal caught in Australia was brought to London. About the size of a rabbit, this strange animal had the thick, fine fur of an otter and webbed feet. It also had a tail rather like that of a beaver and a mouth, or bill, like a duck. Many who saw it thought it was a hoax – the parts of different animals stitched together for a joke. This was no joke. It was a platypus.

Platypuses live in streams and rivers in Australia. A platypus might look like a strange mixture of other animals, but it is perfectly suited to the life it leads. It is a very good swimmer, mainly due to its webbed feet. These feet are also perfect for digging. A platypus can dig long burrows into riverbanks, with some burrows reaching lengths of eighteen metres!

These burrows are very important because it is in a burrow, deep underground, where a mother platypus will care for her young. However, unlike most other mammals, the platypus mother does not give birth to live babies. Instead, she lays eggs! When the eggs hatch, the young platypuses get food from their mother. She does not make milk for them, though. Instead, she releases a special kind of sweat that is rich in food, and the babies survive on this until they are able to eat solid food.

Platypuses hunt for tiny shrimps that hide under stones in rivers and streams. The water can be dark and muddy, but that is not a problem for a platypus. The strange duck-like bill of the platypus is able to detect shrimps from up to a metre away. The platypus can 'feel' the tiny amounts of electricity in the bodies of the shrimps and can find them no matter how well they hide.

As well as being a good hunter, the platypus is also able to protect itself from being attacked. The male platypus has hollow spurs, or claws, behind its ankles that can be used to sting enemies with poison. The platypus is one of only a handful of mammals that can make poison in their bodies.

Experts now believe that, long ago, there were once many kinds of mammal on the Earth quite like the platypus. These mammals would also have laid eggs. Over millions of years, however, most of these mammals became extinct. The platypuses survived because they are so well suited to the life they lead.

Question Time

A

1. In what country do platypuses live?
2. In what sort of place could you find a platypus?
3. Where do shrimps hide?
4. Name the other animals that were used to describe a platypus.
5. When did the first example of a platypus reach London?
6. What did some people think when they first saw it?
7. What two jobs can a platypus do with its feet?
8. How do male platypuses protect themselves from an attack?
9. What is strange about how a baby platypus begins its life?
10. What happened to most of the other egg-laying mammals?

B

1. Why, do you think, did some people believe that the platypus was a hoax?
2. Why do platypuses make burrows?
3. Make a list of all the ways in which platypuses are well suited to their way of life.
4. How do their strange bills help them?
5. Why, do you think, does a platypus have a tail like a beaver?
6. Do you think a platypus would survive in a desert? Why?
7. What do you think would happen to you if you tried to catch a platypus?
8. Which word in the story means 'underground passage'?

Think and Talk

1. Do you think a platypus would make a good pet? Why?
2. Can you name any other mammals that live in rivers?
3. What does the word 'extinct' mean?
4. Can you name any animals that you know are extinct?
5. Can you name any animals that are in danger of becoming extinct?

I. Dán.

Ar Saoire

Ag taisteal chuig an aerfort

Folens are giving all parents/students free access to online resources. Once you have set up your account, click on 4th class & Abair Liom. You can access your book under ebook. Also, there is an option to open the resources accompanying this book which will allow you to listen to the stories in Chapter 19 ‘Ag an Aerfort’ and the poem ‘Ar Saoire’. Once you open Póstaer 19- you have 3 options (1)Éist leis an scéal (2)Foclóir- you will hear the words spoken as Gaeilge & you can match the words to the spoken word (3) 10 Ceisteanna asked as Gaeilge – these are quite difficult.

Also, when you click on Comhrá 19, you will hear the school tour story accompanying pg 158 in your Abair Liom. I’ve attached each of the pages under here also:
